Exodus 3:10

“Come now therefore, and I will send you to Pharaoh, that you may bring forth My people...” Exodus 3:10

Isn't it an amazing thing that the Creator Redeemer God has elected to involve His fallen creation in the redemption process? “for we are laborers together with God.” (1 Corinthians 3:9). Heaven has issued an invitation, no, a command for redeemed mankind to join in the search for the Father's lost creation... “Go therefore into all the world and preach the Good news!”

Saved. First there is the Spirit's wooing and drawing to the Saviour. Then there is a calling of the believer by the Spirit into a life of fellowship and walk of obedience. “Come now therefore...” We are not saved merely to enjoy the benefits of so great a salvation, but we have been saved with a purpose in mind.

Sent. To those who have received the Saviour there comes a moment of His sending forth into the purposes of God and these purposes will be found, more than likely, in the midst of the enemy's camp. “And I will send them unto Pharaoh.” It is in the enemy's camp that the LORD delights in “setting a table before me.”

Serve. The Lord does not send us forth to rule but rather to serve, and it will be in our humble obedience to His plan that we will see the plan of redemption unfold before us as we go.

“That you may bring forth My people...”

Are you saved? Do you know Jesus Christ as your personal Saviour?

To whom has the Spirit of God sent you to demonstrate His love and tell forth His message?

Are you a servant? Or do you require others to always be serving you?
